LEACHED ASHES, -Leached ashesvary so much in character, that no precise estimate of their value can be made. The effect of their application must depend, too, on the kind of soil on which dressings of ashes, leached or unleachtend to increase the crop of grass. In a case reported by Mr. Billings, where large quantities of leached ashes were spread on a field of a few acres, the soil lay loam, inclining to muck in many places, there was the appearance of permanent injury from their use. The land broke up cloddy, and there was great difficulty in reducing it to a friable condition, while there was no perceptible increase of fertility. The safest and best use of leached ashes on most kinds of soil, is spreading them on old meadow or old pasture. Working them into land on which potatoes are to be planted in the same season, is also a good way to use them. Good ashes make valuable dressing for wheat land and for corn; but the leached ashes are too uncertain in their character to be recommended for such use.

BARNS.—In building barns the wants of no two farms will be found alike. spot to be mended. One should make up his mind as to the size of barn and price, and not run be-yond his means. Ite should have a systematic arrangement before commencing to build. It is estimated that a farm of 100 acres/would cut 100 tons of hay. How large a barn should that farm have. One ton of hay is equal to 600 cubic feet, so the 100 tons would require 60,000 cubic feet. There should be a bay 60 feet long, 40 feet wide and 25 feet high. In addition we should wantroom for grain, driveways, threshing floor, &c. This would require a barn 120 feet long, 40 feet wide and 25 feet high of post, with a basement of stone well ventilated. Some think cattle would be better off in a boarded tle would be better off in a boarded basement. Never store manure in the under them. through the mows chimneys to drop hay down to the cattle—one or two rows, as the case demands. I have yound that in large mows great advanglage is derived by putting an empty barrel in while unloading the hay, and braising it up as the hay was built around lit. A barn made of rough boards costs. st. A barn made of rough boards costs $1 for 3 square feet. If it is to be planed and painted, then $1 for 2 square feet of floor space. The present outlook does not warrant any one in expending enough to make these improvements, unless the farmer has something laid up in advance.

WEANING PIGS .- The following plan was furnished for weaning pigs by a New Jersey farmer: When the pigs are of the proper age to be taken from the sow shut them up in the pen in the morning; let them out a little while at noon and again at evening. The second day let them out only at morning and evening, keeping them up at night. On the third day let them out at noon for the last time. While doing this let them have all the slop they want, but refuse the mother everything except seant feeds of corn and water. This will insure the sow's drying up at once and without any evil effect.

The World in Miniature.

Mr. Grube, a maker of wax images in New York, has constructed what is claimed to be the largest globe in the world, showing the ranges of mountains and other peculiarities of the surtace of the earth in relief, now in existance. Its diameter is four feet and one inch, the scale being one in 10,000,-000. The range of even the Himalayas would not be visible upon this globe if the same scale were adopted for the elevations as for the map, and accord ingly the relief is made upon a scale which exaggerates heights twenty times. The oceans, seas and rivers are colored blue; the continents are yellow the glaciers, ice-bergs and floating commenced drawing the lash of his cakes of ice white. Plains and mountain ranges are clearly shown, and every part of the world is exhibited in its he would demand an explanation, and true character. Red, black and white had taken about six steps, when he othermal beits, the variations of the yond expression: magnetic needle, the date line where from Saturday to Monday, and vice versa, and other facts of like character. The map has been corrected in the light of the latest discoveries down to two months ago. The northern coast of Siberia has been much altered in the atlases by the Nordenskeldt expedition the ships sailing in deep water over places marked as 500 miles inland, and being compelled to go hundereds of miles around promonotories etc., which are occupied on the maps by bodies of water. The globe is made of wood. The relief is formed by wax. atlases by the Nordenskeldt expedition

DOMESTIC. ALUM IN BREAD .- A nuisance that troubled Europe fiffty years ago is beginning to attract attention here—that s, putting alum in the bread we eat. The bread must be "light" that it may be digested; that is, it must be filled by the well-known cells we are accustomed to see in it. Where beer or ale is brewed those who understand healthy bread-making procure yeast, which "light-ens" the bread better than any substi-tute, and is wholesome. Where yeast is not readily to be obtained, "baking powders" are resorted to and out of powders" are resorted to, and out of them comes mischief. Bicarponate of soda and cream of tartar, or tartarle acid, are the usual constituents of a good baking powder. Cream of tartar sells from sixty cents to eighty-five cents a pound. This high price has led "cheap baking powders" to be made of alum, as a substitute for some or all of the cream of tartar. Alum will make bread look whiter, so that baker's can make an inferior flour salable as bread by its use; and they use it, in some places calling it "rock," so that no inadvertent expression may let fortunate circumstances, go around to coutsiders know that alum is used. Alum is an injurious article to the human constitution in large quantities, or in small quantities often repeated. It is the small quantities, taken every meal, that do the mischief in bread. saved out of the stomach, and takes it over the road with more case than the pacing horse. A good trainer can then the pacing horse. A good trainer can the ton, dyspepsia and kindred troubles resulting from irritation of the mucous membrane, produced by the astringent properties of alum. All these are nice things to be inflicted by the bread eaten morning, noon and evening. To young children, growing girls, persons of weakly frame and sedentary occupations this alum bread is poison more especially. If the reader wants to know something of alum let him suck a lump of it, notice its effect upon the they are used. Heavy clay is likely to be injuriously compacted by liberal an unripe persimmon; then let him reflect how it acts upon the tender, delied, unless the land is in sod, in which cate coats of the stomach. Dr. Henry case ashes spread upon the surface A. Mott, the celebrated analytical chemist, analyzed twenty-three of the baking powders most in use, and found alum in every one of them. It is time we took measures to stop this bread poisoning that kills our little ones and perpetuates dyspepsia and cholera.

> "I DON'T WANT THAT STUFF" is what a lady of Boston said to her husband when he brought home some medicine to cure her of stek headache and neu-ralgia which had made her miserable for fourteen years. At the first attack thereafter, it was administered to her with such good results, that she con-tinued its use until cured, and made so enthusiastic in its praise, that she induced twenty-two of the best families in her circle to adopt it as their regular family medicine. A ludicrous incident occurred, one season, at "Woodlawn," on the Bloomingdale road. Jone's hotel, of that place, is ornamented with a hostler whose fun is as fearless as his face is ugly. One day in July, while twenty or thirty fast gentlemen were standing in the front balcony of the hotel, an individual rode up the path, on the thinnest horse mortal eyes ever looked upon. Leaping from his plantom steed, the equestrian said, turning to the hostler:

Somebody's Child. Somebody's child.

Somebody's child is dying—dying with the flush of hope on his young face and an indescribable yearning to live and take an honored place in the world beside the companions of his youth. And somebody's mother is thinking of the time when that dear face will be hidden where no ray of hope can brighten it—when her heart and home will be left desolate—because there was no oure for consumption. there was no cure for consumption. Reader, if the child be your neighbor's Reader, if the child be your neighbor's take this comforting word to the mother's heart before it is too late. Tell her that consumption is curable, that men are living to-day, aged, robust men, whom the physicians pronounced incurable at the age of twenty five, because one lung had been almost destroyed by the disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a most efficient alterative for separating the scrofulous matter from the blood and lungs, and matter from the blood and lungs, and imparting strength to the system. It has cured hundreds of consumptives.
